Jasmin grew up being exposed to hatred, discrimination and cruelty.

She learned at a young age to understand her status in the world and the limitations that came with it. Later in life, following a harrowing experience which leaves her physically scarred and broken, she vows to never lose sight of who she is and to never trust anyone but herself. Her harsh experiences in life become her armor against the world and she will not let anyone fool her into stepping out of its protection. For the handsome and enigmatic Gabriel Blake, his solitary lifestyle is a result of his careful planning.

After growing up without the affection of his parents, he came to learn that love was overrated and hard to come by.

Never having experienced love, he feels that he's not capable of that emotion so he has led a reclusive lifestyle, shunning any attachments. He immerses himself in his work and is content with his life. However, his perfectly created lifestyle is soon disrupted. Circumstances bring these two damaged souls together, but can they heal each other or will their past experiences keep their wary hearts apart? Will Jasmin's armor be strong enough to withstand Gabriel's gentle touch?
