Like a hero out of the Old West, he rode out of nowhere to save her from losing everything she owned. But from the moment Kane Montgomery swept into her life, Martine Galway was lost. In his arms she felt wild abandon, even as she wondered about this mystery man who so quickly took over her life. He said he didn't play games, but why did she feel he was toying with her? It was too late for regrets. He'd made his claim, and she'd accepted his passionate terms. He'd captured her heart -- why not her trust? Soon she'd have to choose between total risk and safety -- along with a broken heart.
