When life hands you wolves, howl. The alpha wolf in Zalin's pack is slowly going insane, which is tough enough to contend with, but the guy is gunning for the woman Zalin loves--the rancher's daughter who saved his hide. He's torn between taking off to avoid a confrontation with the Alpha, and sticking around to protect Lucia.

Opening his heart to her is not an option-- he's had enough rejection to last a lifetime. Lucia is fascinated by the "wolf" she saved--at the time unaware he was more than a canine. Zalin seems out to save her from his Alpha, but she wants more than protection from him. When spilled family secrets make her doubt everything she knows, she turns to Zalin for stability, only to learn he's planning to leave. Will Zalin desert the one he loves when she needs him most, or will he howl a challenge on her behalf?
