This book contains an F/F storyline Dani struggles with relationships. She has yet to have one that has brought her anything other than pain. Her best friend rejected her in the most intimate way when they were teenagers. Her parent's unwillingness to accept her sexuality after finding her in a compromising position, that person then disappearing without a trace being prime examples. Now she lives with her cousin, the only family member who accepts her, and has settled into work and a lifestyle she is happy with. A chance encounter one night brings back old feelings she believed were dead and buried. A surprise proposition offers a chance to resolve unfinished business. Will this be a chance to renew a passion long thought buried? Or will this open old wounds that might not ever heal?
