The recession has hit Kate Kinsella hard. Not only can she not find regular nursing work, but her Nursing and Medical Investigations agency is withering due to as lack of clients.

The only thriving business in Longborough seems to be that of her landlord Hubert Humberstone, the local undertaker. Then a body found in the boot of a burnt-out car is identified as that of a nurse at the Riverside Medical Centre and it seems that Kate could have both a new job and a new case. But Kate could be stepping into the dead nurse's shoes in more ways than one...
